

This session demonstrates the use of the diary of the activities of a work session.

The operator takes the string, at the top there is the place where the "Vaccari Institute" is located and the second image is that of the "desk activity".

To show the time scan the operator tells the child "finished" and at the same time detaches the image of the finished work and completes it with a gesture.

In the end it shows what still needs to be done before he can go home.

The use of these visual strings helps the child control the frustration of not knowing what he is going to do and for how long.
